Romeo and juliet text act 1 scene 5 summary essay

Read along to this summary of Act 3, scenes 1-3 of the classic Shakespeare play "Othello." Cassio asks musicians to play for him as the clown enters. Cassio offers the Clown money to ask Desdemona to speak with him. The Clown agrees. Iago enters; Cassio tells him that he will ask his wife Emilia to help him get access to Desdemona. Iago agrees to send her and to distract Othello so that he can meet with Desdemona. Emilia enters and tells Cassio that Desdemona has been speaking in his favor but that Othello heard that the man he hurt was a great man of Cyprus and that that makes his position difficult but that he does love him and can't find anyone else to suit the position. Cassio asks Emilia to get Desdemona to talk to him. Emilia invites him to go with her to a place where he and Desdemona can talk privately. Othello asks Iago to send some letters to the Senate and then orders the Gentlemen to show him a fort. Desdemona is with Cassio and Emilia. She promises to help him. Emilia says that Cassio's situation is upsetting her husband so much that it's as if he were in that situation. Desdemona reiterates every one's belief that Iago is an honest man. She reassures Cassio that he and her husband will be friends once more. Cassio is worried that Othello will forget about his service and his loyalty as more time passes. Desdemona reassures Cassio by promising that she will speak favorably of Cassio relentlessly so that Othello will be convinced of his cause. Othello and Iago enter seeing Desdemona and Cassio together. Iago says "Ha! I like not that". Othello asks if it was Cassio he just saw with his wife. Iago feigns incredulity saying he doesn't think that Cassio would "steal away so guilty like seeing your coming" Desdemona tells Othello that she has just been speaking with Cassio and urges him to reconcile with the lieutenant. Desdemona explains that Cassio departed so quickly because he was embarrassed. She continues to persuade her husband to meet with Cassio, despite his reluctance. She is true to her word and is persistent in her insistence that they meet. Othello says that he will deny her nothing but he will wait until Cassio approaches him personally. Desdemona is not pleased that he has not bent to her will; "Be as your fancies teach you. Whate'er you be, I am obedient." As the ladies depart Iago asks if Cassio knew of the courtship between him and Desdemona, Othello affirms that he did and asks Iago why he asks questioning if Cassio is an honest man. Iago goes on to say that men should be what they seem and that Cassio seems honest. This raises Othello's doubt and he asks Iago to say what he thinks believing that Iago is insinuating something about Cassio. Iago pretends to be hesitant about speaking ill of someone. Othello urges him to speak saying that if he is a true friend he will say. Iago insinuates that Cassio has designs on Desdemona but never actually says it explicitly so when Othello reacts to what he thinks is a revelation, Iago warns him not to be jealous. Othello says he will not be jealous unless there is proof of an affair. Iago tells Othello to watch Cassio and Desdemona together and to be neither jealous nor secure until his conclusions are made. Othello believes that Desdemona is honest and Iago hopes that she will be honest forever. Iago is concerned that someone of Desdemona's position may have 'second thoughts' about her choices and may regret her decisions but he maintains that he is not speaking about Desdemona. The inference is that he is a Black man and not level with her standing. Othello asks Iago to observe his wife and report on his findings. Othello is left alone to muse on Iago's suggestion of infidelity he says "This fellow's of exceeding honesty...if I prove her haggard...I am abused, and my relief Must be to loathe her." Desdemona arrives and Othello is distant with her, she tries to comfort him but he does not respond favorably. She tries to dab his forehead with a napkin thinking him ill but he drops it. Emilia picks up the napkin and explains that it is a precious love token given to Desdemona by Othello; she explains that it is very dear to Desdemona but that Iago has always wanted it for some reason or another. She says she will give the napkin to Iago but she has no idea why he wants it. Iago comes in and insults his wife; she says she has the handkerchief for him. Emilia asks for it back as she realizes that Desdemona will be really upset to know she has lost it. Iago refuses saying he has use for it. He dismisses his wife who leaves. Iago is going to leave the napkin in Cassio's quarters in order to corroborate his story further. Othello enters, bewailing his situation; he explains that if his wife proves false he will no longer be able to function as a soldier. He is already finding it difficult to concentrate on matters of the state when his own relationship is in question. Othello says that if Iago is lying he will not forgive him, he then apologizes as he 'knows' Iago to be honest. Then he explains that he knows his wife is honest but doubts her too. Iago tells Othello that he could not sleep one night because of having a toothache so he went to Cassio's. He says that Cassio spoke of Desdemona in his sleep saying "Sweet Desdemona, let us be wary, let us hide our loves"; he goes on to tell Othello that Cassio then kissed him on the lips imagining him to be Desdemona. Iago says that it was only a dream but this information is enough to convince Othello of Cassio's interest in his wife. Othello says "I'll tear her to pieces." Iago then tells Othello that Cassio has the handkerchief belonging to his wife. This is enough for Othello to be convinced of the affair, he is inflamed and enraged. Iago tries to 'calm him down'. Iago promises to obey any orders his master gives in retaliation for the affair. Othello thanks him and tells him that Cassio will die for this. Iago urges Othello to let her live but Othello is so angry that he damns her too. Othello makes Iago his lieutenant. Iago says "I am your own for ever." Samueles/Pixabay Romeo and Juliet is widely regarded as one of William Shakespeare's greatest works. The play depicts a star-crossed romance that ends with the deaths of the main characters. With the city of fair Verona as the backdrop, Shakespeare uses figurative language to weave a tale. He commonly uses similes to show emotion and to demonstrate that two feelings, people, or objects are similar to each other using the words "like" or "as."Love 'Pricks Like a Thorn' In Act 1, Scene 4, Romeo says that love "pricks like a thorn." When he says this, Romeo questions whether love is as tender and soft as people claim it is. He says that love is painful and rough. He is not optimistic about love when he says this. He knows how much love can hurt. Lovers' Tongues Are 'Like Softest Music' In Act 2, Scene 2, Romeo claims that "lovers' tongues" are "like softest music to attending ears." In this passage, Romeo says that lovers saying each other's names throughout the night is reminiscent of sweet music. He says that hearing a lover say his name would be like hearing soft music. When he uses this simile, he shows the beauty of love. This simile contrasts with some of Romeo's earlier opinions about love. Early in the play when he is heartbroken, Romeo talks poorly about love. In similes like this one, he speaks more highly of it. This makes it clear that his opinion changes based on the situation. Juliet Is 'Like a Rich Jewel' In Act 1, Scene 5, Romeo sees Juliet and describes her. He says, "It seems she hangs upon the cheek of night, like a rich jewel in an Ethiop's ear." In this simile, Romeo compares Juliet to a jewel sparkling against darkness. In many cases, Shakespeare uses similes to describe Juliet's rich beauty from Romeo's point of view. Juliet's Love Is 'as Boundless as the Sea' In Act 2, Scene 2, Juliet uses a simile to describe her love. She says, "My bounty is as boundless as the sea." In saying this, Juliet expresses that her love does not have a limit. It is deep. She also describes her love as her "bounty," which is a term often used to describe agriculture. Her love is like a generous gift from the earth. She uses this language to describe her passion and its roots. Romeo Describes the Joy of Love as 'Schoolboys From Their Books' In Act 2, Scene 2, Romeo describes the joy of love. The verse says, "Love goes toward love, as schoolboys from their books." He says that lovers who are together feel as happy as students who are leaving school. He follows that up with "But love from love, toward school with heavy looks." In this statement, Romeo is saying that two lovers leaving each other is akin to students being forced to return to school. In using this comparison, Romeo is saying that leaving Juliet is like having to return to a place he hates with a heavy heart. MORE FROM REFERENCE.COM Thank you for your participation!
